

Vacancy note

Biomedical technician (Biomedizinische*r Analytiker*in)

Apply by 11 October 2023

The medical faculty of Johannes Kepler University Linz is looking for a biomedical technician for its new core facility biobank.

The Center for Medical Research (CMR) in Linz is the central site for laboratory-based research in Upper Austria. The accompanying biobank of JKU Linz is currently under construction and will be an important addition to the local research infrastructure. Tasks of the position as biomedical scientist at this new biobank will include the processing of biobank samples, maintenance of sample storage and active participation in biobank projects as well as the establishment of quality management procedures.

The position is full-time, start of work as soon as possible.

For further information and details about the requirements for the job see Details and application>